

THE UNKNOWN WARRIOR

ARMISTICE DAY. THE UNKNOWN WARRIOR. THE IMPRESSIVE SCENE IN THE ABBEY WHEN THE GUARDS HAD TAKEN UP THEIR POST. WARRIOR.

Touching Account Of The Ceremony

On Armistice Day, November 11th, London was the scene of one of the grandest ceremonies ever held there, the burial of an unknown warrior in Westminster Abbey, with King George and the greatest men of the British Empire as mourners. As there are some in this district whose sons are buried in nameless graves throughout the war zone, and as we all should in spirit be mourners for those who died in the hope that their death would be our salvation, we make no apology for reprinting the following account, (abbreviated) from the Edinburgh " Scotsman ".

Let us remember that we in this district have as yet no memorial to those men, and let us work untrigging till we have one.

Greater crowds have thronged the London streets than those of today, but never before has there been such a sense of almost magnetic feeling for those who lined the streets were not mere spectators, but an actual living part of that wonderful ceremony which had called them from their homes. To suggest that there was any degree of that capacity that is aroused by pagantry would be untrue. For of pagantry in its accepted form there was none. History can find nothing approaching the sublime grandeur of today's burial of an Unknown Warrior—type not only of his nation's finest attributes, but of the very highest ideals of humanity that must survive through the handings of human weakness to the highest goal of right and justice against the forces of arrogant and evil might. It was a nation's heartfelt tribute to its own grandest inspirations. The poor, broken, and nameless body that was laid to rest in the national requiem to the eternal symbol of all that was noble and sacrificed by those who were forth to battle in the great struggle. In their absence to the great idea of the silent and prayer the people at once paid their homage to those who proved the quality of the greatest devotion. It was the keynote of simplicity and sincerity, of common sense and feeling, that have the occasion its grand solemnity and meaning. In the

BOY BREAKS ARM

Harold Tucker, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Tucker, had the misfortune to break his arm severely on Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Tucker had been engaged in drilling a well at the back of the Strathmore Restaurant, and his son was engaged helping him. The boy's glove was caught in the mud and the arm was twisted completely round, the wrist, forearm, and upper arm bones being broken.

DEATH OF CARL GADE

We regret to have to report the death on Saturday morning, in the Holy Cross Hospital, Calgary, of Mr. Carl Gade, a well-known farmer of the district.

The funeral took place on Monday at Strathmore Cemetery, the body having been conveyed from Calgary by motor hearse. Service was held in the Union Church at one o'clock, and was attended by a large number of friends of the deceased. Rev. T. Phillips conducted the service.

The late Mr. Gade is survived by his widow and four children, with the greatest sympathy is felt in their bereavement. They took up land here four years ago, coming from near Oregon, and had made many friends since coming here.

MR. DAMEN SR. IS RUN OVER BY CAR

Has Leg Broken

Mr. J. P. Damen, a well-known farmer in the district, was severely injured on Friday, his leg being broken by the rear wheel of his car, which ran over it. The accident happened in a peculiar manner. Mr. Damen was going up to Calgary in his car, after his son William, and when near Chestermore Lake they noticed that the engine was buckling. The car was being stopped, but Mrs. Damen was not working properly, and Mr. Damen jumped out before the car had stopped, and slipped under the car. He was immediately conveyed to the Holy Cross Hospital in Calgary, where he received medical attention. It is thought that he will be several weeks yet before he is able to leave Calgary.

The accident happened at an unfortunate time, as Mrs. Damen had just the previous day taken a stroke, and was lying in bed in a precarious condition. At last reports, however, both she and Mr. Damen were showing good improvement.

THE WEDNESDAY HALF-HOLIDAY

—O—

With one or two exceptions, most of Strathmore signed an agreement to close their stores every Wednesday afternoon, during the year 1921, with the exception of the months of July and August, and one week in which there already is a holiday.

An act, dealing with this will be found in another column of the Standard, and plans are also distributed in the stores participating.

The several years past Strathmore merchants have been busy with one job, on Wednesday afternoon, during the spring and summer months, on the exception of the period of harvest operations, and it has proved a fine boon to shop assistants and the housewives themselves. It is believed that this year will see a greater degree of success if it is observed the year round with the exception of the harvest period, and it will get fixed in the minds of consumers.

Carriers already had a regular half holiday each week, and many other towns in the province follow the same practice.

A bill was introduced in Legislature last session to give it compulsion throughout the Province, but so far it has not been passed into effect.

HOCKEY AND SKATING

The temporary rink at the lake is now fixed up and numbers of enthusiasts are already enjoying winter sports. The mild weather is helping out the skating of Messrs. Smith and Harmer's rink, but as soon as a fall of snow comes it will be possible to even it up and put the water on.

Arrangements are being made to have the new rink electrically lit.

Mr. Geo. B. Anderson has been elected secretary of the Hockey Club. We don't hear any more about the proposed curling club. What is the matter with the curling enthusiasts. Are their feet getting cold?

A social evening will be held in the Aikens Hotel on the evening of December 17th, and all representatives and others are invited to attend. A considerable number of subscribers to the paper expire this month. Mr. Brown is making the editor's Christmas list happier send him in your $2.00. A subscription to the Standard also makes an ideal present for the folks at home.

CARSELAND NOTES

The low price of grain are causing the financial straits to be felt in Canseland, as elsewhere.

Doctor McConkey, formerly of U.S. is now located in Canseland, and has started practice. He expects to have his wife and family here in the near future.

Mr. W. A. Brown is a son of the late Mr. Brown, who died on December 27th, 1919. He is now in Calgary. Details will be found in advertising columns.

Rev. P. F. Cook's ministry is meeting with much success here, and service attendance are increasing weekly.

Messrs. Witley and Lyons have taken over the Canseland Garage.

Mr. F. W. Jones, formerly with Mr. L. Brown, has opened up a grocery and stationary store. He is a returned miner, and a popular figure in the community.

Miss Brown's auto does a great deal to advertise Canseland. The town makes people think that one of the C.P.R. engines has run off the track and is heading for the town.

Mr. E. A. Wyndham is writing in the High River Times protesting against the action of Union Council with regard to land purchased for a road allowance in Canseland Bridge.

Weyers; Secretary, W. E. Springthorpe; Directors, W. Anderson, H. W. Wath, A. Stinn, J. Campbell, D. Fraser.

Calgary, Alta.—An Alberta man has produced a type of corn, a cross between sweet and squaw corn, which is earlier in maturity than the ordinary sweet corn and produces in many respects the hardness of squaw corn. One advantage of this new strain is that it matures from a week to ten days earlier than sweet corn.

Forms and Functions of Governments in Canada

Under a democratic form of government it is of the utmost importance that the masses of the people who constitute the democracy have a clear grasp and an intelligent understanding of the machinery and functions of government, and this is especially true in countries like Canada where the powers, responsibilities and functions of government are divided as between Federal, Provincial and municipal legislative and administrative bodies.

Important as it has always been that people should have an understanding of the political conditions under which they live and are governed, it is perhaps even more important today than at any previous period in history. In these times, when it would be both life and death to deny that a spirit of unrest prevails, changes in the existing forms of government are being advocated in many quarters. It is not, however, that the people are dissatisfied by some organizations; others were a complete revolution along the lines advocated by adherents of the One Big Union; some would have the Soviet system of Russia introduced; the cry of "self-determination" is raised, although it is not made very clear what it signifies for determination; and, in general, there is a groping and realignment of the masses of the people in regard to master political.

Because of these conditions, it is more important than ever before that there should be a clear understanding of the present system, methods and functions of government in Canada which these several bodies of opinion would alter, change, and, in some instances, absolutely destroy if they had their way.

It is unquestionably true that in these Western Provinces, where such a large percentage of the people have come from other lands, where conditions and forms of government are quite different, much confusion exists as to the different spheres of government vested in the Federal Parliament at Ottawa and in the Legislative Assemblies of the various Provinces. Because of this, it has been suggested that a series of articles of a purely educational character dealing with government in Canada would be both valuable and timely.

For example, the newcomer, whether from the United States or some European country, finds it exceedingly difficult to understand the relation which exists between the British Crown and Governments in Canada. The immigrant from Europe, familiar with the old autocratic monarchial government in his native land, entertains the idea that somewhat similar conditions prevail in Canada, possibly even worse, and that Canada, as a possession of the British Crown, is ruled by governors appointed overseas. In coming settlers from the United States, in many instances, have a vague and hazy notion that in Canada people do not enjoy the same liberties and principles of democratic responsible government prevailing across the line—that, because we are subjects of King George V., we do not enjoy complete independence of action and many believe that Canada has to pay tribute or taxes to England.

The very fact that all legislation is enacted in the name of the King, that the Government makes its laws as the King's representative, and that the Royal Assent is required to all legislation passed before it becomes law, leads to a belief in many quarters that Canadians do not enjoy all the rights of self-government and as full exercise of all liberties as do the peoples of the United States or any other country.

As a matter of fact, King George V. exercises far less power in Canada than the President does in the United States. The King in England, or his representative, the Governor-General in Canada, is not the President of the Dominion, but the power is divided between the Governor-General and the President of the Dominion. The President of the Dominion is elected by the people, and his term of office is for five years. The Governor-General, however, the people have no remedy except to elect a new President when the next election comes round, but that time long or a year. In Canada, the people must be consulted in a general election immediately, and if their verdict is in favor of the dismissed minister, the Governor-General, or the Lieutenant-Governor, as the case may be, is recalled from office.

The King, or his representative, is obliged to accept as his ministers and advisers those men who are shown to have the confidence of the people through their election to Parliament or Legislature, and who command the support of a majority of all the members in Parliament or Legislature. The moment a minority loses the support of such a majority of the people's elected representatives, it must resign and make way for a new Ministry possessing such support. In the United States, on the other hand, the President personally selects his own cabinet of ministers, men who may, or may not, be the choice of the people, and men who may not command the support of a majority in Congress.

The Crown is a constant in binding all parts of the British Empire together, but the Crown does not, and cannot, legislate of itself, impose taxes, or enforce laws. These things can only be done by the elected representatives of the people and the courts of law which those representatives in their wisdom create. In a word, in no country do the people enjoy wider liberty or greater freedom of action than in Canada, both Federally and Provincially.

Wealth in Old Stamps

Trunk Filled With Old Letters Worth A Fortune.

An old trunk, decayed and crumbling to pieces, discovered by workmen in an attic in Philadelphia, containing nothing but bundles of letters, has been found to be a fortune in old stamps. "The man in the Street" would never recognize the worth of such a mass of apparent trash, but philatelists say the stamps on such old letters, crude, inartistic and often of a value of a few cents, are worth a king's ransom. Examination of a few of the letters reveals the fact that the entire collection of correspondence contained in the trunk files in the law office of one William Morris Meredith, a man of large acquaintance, who received letters from persons in all parts of the country and abroad.

Origin of Word "Poltrone" To Eradicate Weeds

In Olden Days Meant Person Without Thumbs. The word "poltrone" has a rather interesting origin, having started out in life as police trunk, a Latin word meaning one who is without thumbs, deprived of his thumb. In the olden days when bows and arrows were the main weapon of the soldier, the thumb was a most essential part of the hand, for without it the archer could not hope to draw the bow with any like good aim or exert his arm's full strength. To avoid military service many a man chopped off his own thumb or got his wife to perform the act for him. In time the man who did this bit of self-exorcism became known as a "poltrone," and the last change to its present stage is easily traced.

Weed Train Will Be Run Through Prairie Provinces. Arrangements for the running of a "weed train" through Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta for six weeks, commencing about the last week of July, were made by the Deputy Ministers of Agriculture of the three provinces, who met in Saskatoon recently. The train will be equipped with all of the necessary material to demonstrate the growth of the various weeds of the prairie provinces through their various stages, as well as the best means of eradicating them. The train will be composed of two locomotives, a demonstration car, a sleeper and a diner for the personnel. It will be manned by representatives of the Departments of Agriculture of the provinces concerned, their colleges of agriculture, and the rural municipal associations. An extensive tour of the provinces will accompany the train throughout its entire trip, although in each province the lecturers will be chosen from that province. It is planned to cover with the train this year as many as possible of the points on the Canadian Pacific Railway, and later on to take up the Canadian National lines. There will be two meetings a day. Two weeks will be spent in each province.

$70.00 PER ACRE

Mr. Harvey Hanson has purchased 252 acres in the Elwood District, east of town from Mr. A. Thorsen, at a price of $70 per acre. There are no buildings on the land, though it has been tilled and cropped, and the price given shows the confidence with which Alberta land is regarded by the people living in the country, even with this year's low wheat prices. The crop in the Elwood district ran very high this fall, some wheat crops going as high as fifty bushels per acre.

The Clifton Mallory Players appear of hope last week, and gave a very good performance, but the attendance of the public was small. Consequently the guarantors who yielded to the blandishments of the young lady who was around with the contract had to come through with a sum equivalent to 412 apiece, which is a high price to pay for an evening's entertainment. There are two other contracts to be held in the spring, and the guarantors have left the public will attend in larger numbers, and give them a chance of breaking even. The entertainment to have been given by Mr. Hanson on the 15th inst., under the same auspices (Dominion Lyceum) has been cancelled. Some one has suggested that if the management could only get the young ladies who travel the various towns and persuade merchants and others to guarantee the shows to appear on the concert platform they would ensure a success.

One of the best evenings of the season will be participated in by those who attend the concert to be given by Strathmore School pupils in the Opera House tomorrow (Thursday) evening. The programme is a long and interesting one, as will be seen from the poster: "The best of us, some of us, and the rest of us." "Christmas Carol" will close the evening's entertainment, and will open the eyes of any who may be doubtful of the histrionic ability of our scholars. There should be a record turnout of the public, and those who wish to see the show comfortably should be on the scene early.

BEYOND HIS POWER

A recently appointed chaplain of a Swedish prison said to the occupant of one of the cells he entered on his first round of inspection. "Well, my man, do you know who I am?" "No, but I shall care," was the reply. "Well, I'm your new chaplain," "Oh, yes, and I have heard of you before," "And what did you say?" asked the chaplain. "Well, I heard that the last two kids you were in you had them both empty; and I thought it quite a nice way."

ARDENODE NOTES

A general meeting of the Ardenode school was held in the school house on Saturday, December 4th, with a good attendance of members and several visitors. After a short business session the meeting had the pleasure of hearing Mr. W. M. Galloway, Reeve of the M. D. Roma, a chairman of the proposed Calgary Hospital District, give a most vivid explanation of the scheme in all its phases. After his explanation, numerous questions were asked and answered by Mr. Galloway to the satisfaction of all concerned, thereby clearing the air on many points which one general, interpreter could not understand before. The chairman then gave a short address on the aims and ob-

RUMELY OIL PULL TRACTOR

Buy Your Tractor Now

THE man who buys his OilPull tractor now shows real foresight and common sense.

First, he gets the use of it for the many winter and early spring jobs before heavy spring plowing begins.

Second, he becomes thoroughly familiar with it before he jumps into the regular spring work.

And, besides, he gets the OilPull while the "getting is good." Even though the big Rumely factories have been extended and the production of OilPulls greatly increased over previous seasons, the demand has increased even faster. "Oversold" will probably be the cry in 1920 as in 1919.

Tractor buyers are recognizing more and more the outstanding quality of the OilPull—made famous by the large number of highly desirable, and exclusive features it embodies.

Oil Burning—Guaranteed to burn kerosene under all conditions and loads to its full rated brake horsepower.

Oil Cooled—No radiator troubles—no boiling—no freezing—no even motor temperature.

Powerful 2-Cylinder Motor—Low speed, heavy duty, valve in head—37 parts ground to the thousandth part of an inch—throttle governed—equipped with Bosch magneto.

Perfect Lubricating System—Combination fresh oil force feed (Madison-Kipp) and splash system.

Long Life—The first OilPulls built, after 11 years in the field, are still going strong.

Be sure of getting a tractor with these exclusive advantages by placing your order for an OilPull now.

ALBERTA WHEAT EXPECTED TO AVERAGE 25 BUSH.

Exceeding by seven or eight hundred the mark established in 1919, the threshold figures issued in the Province of Alberta by the Provincial Department of Agriculture for the present year will reach at least 2,500 according to the government statisticians.

Although no hint in the way of an average will be struck until all the returns are made by the threshers and they are completed, which is not likely to be before the middle of next January, it is estimated that the spring wheat yield for Alberta will approximate twenty-five bushels per acre, one of the best yields in many years.

The estimate average yield for Alberta already struck by federal authorities is about twenty-two and a half bushels. This is based on the average seeded to wheat, whereas the Alberta average is based on the acreage actually threshed as reported in the returns made by the threshers. Therefore, on the final average from threshers' returns as fairly accurate. Last year's returns gave an average of 4 bushels higher than the preliminary estimate of the Dominion Statistician.

Burial of Unknown Warrior

and on the final stroke His Majesty turned about and far to the westward and gave the necessary touch to the revelation for revealing the memorial. The display of a Union Jack at one end, and the flag at the other, caught on the top edge of the masonry and hung there till it was laid away. The two minutes' march followed, minutes of tense emotion, during which many sobbed a-soul. The King stood with bowed head facing the cenotaph, but most eyes looked towards the spot where reposed the Unknown Warrior, who was symbolical of the whole phantom host whose memory was being thus beautifully commemorated. Britain's valiant dead, scattered to graves known and unknown in every corner of the world. Beside the funeral car stood the organizers of the victory these men never lived to see; Haig, Beatty, French, and the others, while King and people joined in paying common homage to the memory of the men who, faithful unto death, had made that victory possible.

It was a memorable scene. As far as the eye could reach all the way up Whitehall was blocked with people. It seemed as if the entire nation were following the bier of the Unknown Warrior in fact as well as in spirit. The silence was of hush broken by the ringing notes of the buglers sounding the "Last Post," which rent the stillness. It was over. The King replaced his cap and advanced to the base of the Cenotaph with the Royal wreath, laurels and some blood-red flowers. He was followed by the Prince of Wales, whose wreath was composed of laurel leaves and white flowers. Then followed Mr. Lloyd George with his floral tribute.

A multitude of military commands rang out, and the procession began to move again. The Unknown Warrior had made his last halt by the wayside on his last long vote march. In a few minutes the funeral car had disappeared from view, and the doors of the abbey had opened to receive him into his last resting place at home in London's central zone.

Burial of the Unknown Warrior
In Westminster Abbey, surrounded by the graves of Kings, statesmen, and poets, lies the body of an Unknown Warrior, who gave his life to his country at a time of great need. With a respect accorded only to the highest of the land, this Unknown Warrior, representing the host of his nameless comrades who made with him the supreme sacrifice, was brought home and laid to rest in the presence of his King and the greatest of his countrymen.

The noble Abbey, which has so often provided no setting for the expression of a nation's grief or joy, seemed within its walls an assembly actuated by feelings partly of grief and partly of joy, but above all of thankfulness and pride.

From an early hour the congregation began to assemble taking their places quietly and decorously. As the morning wore on rays of sunshine came filtering through overhead, tinting the grey pillars with gold and relieving with a mellow light the sombre attire of those present.

On the ground at the western end of the nave was laid a large expanse of cloth of royal purple with white border in the centre being the oblong aperture of the grave.

V.C. Guard of Honour

On the strike of ten heard the slow and measured footsteps of the guard of honour composed of a hundred soldiers and soldiers whose honours gained for them the high honour of the Victoria Cross. They line each side of the grave irrespective of distinction of rank, and await the moment for the fulfilment of their task. The soil and gradually swelling music of Sullivan's "In Memoriam" is heard, followed by the even sadder tones of a French funeral march. The music ceases and gives place to the voices of the choir and clergy, who move in stately procession from the nave to the high altar, singing:

"O valiant hearts who to our glory came Through dust of conflict and
Through battle flame.
Tread you lie, your anarchy
Virtues proved.
Your memory hallowed in the land
You leave.

Recently the congregation joined in the singing of "O God, our help in Ages Past," and heads are reverently bowed as the Lord's Prayer is uttered.

Eleven o'clock begins to strike, and deep silence heralds the Empire's tribute to the fallen. Two minutes only, but emotion cannot be restrained by all at all. Men sob, and the weeping of many women makes itself heard from the aisles within the Abbey as they are merged in the gradual crescendo outside of the Funeral March of Chopin. Deeper and deeper it comes, and the congregation prepares to honour the Unknown Warrior, whose approach is thus announced.

The coffin covered by a Union Jack, on which is placed the sword of honour, a steel trench helmet, and a large bunch of beautiful scarlet flowers, is carried slowly in on the shoulders of six Grenadiers. On either side of the coffin the distinguished representatives, who honour themselves in this honour they pay to a former comrade in arms of humble rank. Following the coffin comes the King, representing the nation and the Empire, as chief mourner. Directly behind are the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Cornwall, and other Royal Princes while in the background are to be seen members of the various Administrations concerned with the conduct of the war. The Prime Minister and Mr. Asquith are prominent figures.

The Grenadiers lower the coffin to the cross bars on the open grave, spring to attention, turn sharply to the right and sit, and move away for those who are to perform the last office. The King comes closer to the lead of the coffin; the pallbearers step onto the purple cloth surrounding the grave, and the altar of Westminster, Dr. Lyke, having on his right the Archbishop of Canterbury, said on his left the Bishop of London, commences the committal service. The golden cross of Westminster, held aloft in the background, glimmers in the sun.

Handful of Earth from France
The last cadence of "Lead, Kindly Light," dies away, and the Grenadiers again advance, this time to remove the Union Jack and all that lies upon it. They take away the cross bars and lower the body of the Unknown Warrior gently to its last resting place. The King comes still closer to the grave, and from a silver shell casts upon the soil a handful of earth from the soil of France. It is the consummation of a great and solemn inspiration.

The glowing lines of "The Reconsolation" are sung, and the blessing is given. Then a prolonged interval of silence followed by the toll of muffled drums. The sound grows in volume and dies away gradually, giving place to the sharp notes of the bugles sounding the "Reveille."

The ceremony is over, and a great nation has shown its gratitude to the nameless ones who gave their lives for their country's sake.
